

INFORMATION ABOUT THE FEDERAL TORT CLAIMS ACT OR
WHAT TO DO IF YOU MIGHT HAVE A TORT CASE AGAINST THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF PRISONS

Prepared by the D.C. Prisoners' Project of the Washington Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights and Urban Affairs
11 Dupont Cir., NW, Suite 400
Washington, DC 20036

Last updated July 2011

DISCLAIMER: This document is not intended to replace the advice of any attorney. This document does not represent legal advice by the D.C. Prisoners' Project of the Washington Lawyers' Committee, does not create an attorney-client relationship, and should not be relied upon as your sole resource in dealing with the Federal Tort Claims Act.

This booklet explains the Federal Tort Claims Act (also called the FTCA). This Act makes it possible to sue the United States for “negligent” or “wrongful acts” that its employees commit while “acting within the scope of their employment.” These phrases are explained more below.

The Prison Litigation Reform Act (the PLRA) may mean that you have to complete the internal prison grievance process. Before filing a lawsuit, you should always work your way through the grievance process, including all possible appeals. This is called “exhausting your administrative remedies.”

For claims about injury or death that you file under the FTCA, completing the grievance process is RECOMMENDED.

For claims under the Constitution or any other federal law (5th amendment, 8th amendment, 14th amendment and others), completing the grievance process is REQUIRED. These kinds of claims are not discussed in this guide.

We understand that this means you have to fill out a lot of forms and that the prison may not respond. However, you want to make sure that you do everything now that you can so that you do not get a case dismissed from court later. Even if completing the grievance process is not required, it is always good to have a paper trail. You want to show that you did everything you could do to solve the problem.

It is recommended that you follow the grievance procedures at the same time as you follow the procedures below. Fill out an Informal Complaint (BP-8) and then continue the process through the Appeal to the General Counsel (BP-11). At the same time, follow the steps in this guide.

WHAT DOES THE FTCA COVER?

You can file a claim under the FTCA if you were injured or if someone was killed because a federal employee did something wrong “in the course of employment.” People who work at federal BOP prisons are federal employees.

“In the course of employment” means that someone was “on the job.” For example, it may be possible that you were injured when a BOP employee did something that was not part of his or her job and without anyone else’s permission. If what they did was not part of the employee’s job duties, then that employee might not have been “in the course of employment” at the time. If you are not sure, go ahead and follow the procedures below. Be ready to explain why you think the employee was doing something on the job and within his or her job description.

WHAT DOES THE FTCA NOT COVER?

- Claims for property loss or damage.¹
- Things done by people who are contractors with the BOP. If someone is not directly employed by the BOP, but works for another company who contracts with the BOP, you cannot use the FTCA.
- If you are hurt while on a prison work assignment
- If a BOP employee acts outside of their job: outside “the course of employment.”

WHO CAN FILE A CLAIM FOR YOU?

You may follow these procedures yourself or authorize someone to do it for you. If you want someone else to do it, sign a written statement that gives them permission to act for you.

If you authorize someone else to act for you, any responses about your claim will go to that person and not to you. If for some reason you get a response instead, you are responsible for forwarding it to the person helping you.

Do not assume that the D.C. Prisoners' Project of the Washington Lawyers' Committee will file these forms for you! Unless we have told you something differently in writing, you are responsible for following these steps yourself.

¹ The Supreme Court ruled in 2008 in the case Ali v. Federal Bureau of Prisons that you cannot sue the BOP for claims of property loss or damage. The citation for the case is Ali v. Federal Bureau of Prisons, 552 U.S. 214 (2008). The Supreme Court ruled that the FTCA does not apply when property is lost or damaged when it is taken by “any law enforcement officer,” as stated in 28 U.S.C. § 2680(c). The Small Claims Act is the only way for you to recover money. See page 7 of this guide for how to file a claim for property loss or damage.

HOW LONG DO I HAVE TO DO THIS?

You must file an FTCA claim with the agency (usually the BOP) within TWO YEARS of the injury or death. If you wait longer than the deadline, you will not be able to get anything.

The date the harm happened: _____

WHAT ARE THE STEPS TO FOLLOW?

STEP 1. Figure out what happened and who did it. Make notes for yourself before you begin to fill out forms.

- When did this incident happen?
- Who was responsible for it?
- Were they acting in the scope of their employment, “on the job”?
- For a personal injury case
 - How were you hurt?
 - Do you have medical records showing your injuries?
- For a wrongful death case
 - How did the person die?
 - Do you have medical records for them that show what happened?

STEP 2. Get a Claim Form.

- You should ask for a “Claim for Damage, Injury, or Death and Supplemental Instructions (SF-95)” also known as a Federal Tort Claims Act (FTCA) form.
- Current federal inmates may be able obtain FTCA claim forms from a member of their Unit Team or someone else at the prison. If you are no longer in a Federal institution, or you cannot obtain a form, you may write a letter with all the information that would go on the form (see Step 3). You must be certain that all the information is in the letter.

STEP 3. Fill out the form (or write the letter, if you cannot obtain a form). You must include, in the proper spaces on the form if you have one:

- Your name and address
- Whether the person responsible was employed as a military employee or a civilian employee (in most cases, BOP employees are civilian)
- Your date of birth

- Your marital status
- The date of the accident or incident
- The basis of the claim: tell what happened and people involved
- The nature of the injury
- List all witnesses and their addresses
- The amount of money you want for your claim. Be honest. Look at what expenses you actually had to pay to fix the injury. Include any receipts, medical records, or other information that help support your claim. You cannot get punitive damages.

STEP 4. Send in the form. Send it in to the BOP regional office for the place where the incident occurred. The addresses you need are listed on Page 9 of this handout.

STEP 5. Wait for the acknowledgement letter.

- If you have filled out the form correctly, including a specific amount of money you are asking for, you will receive a letter that acknowledges receipt of your claim. Keep track of the date they say they received the claim. That is the FILING DATE. You will also receive a CLAIM NUMBER. Use this number if you have to write to the agency for anything else about your claim.

The FILING DATE: _____ The CLAIM NUMBER: _____

- You are responsible for notifying the BOP Counsel's Office if your address changes, if you are transferred, or if you are released. The address is on page 9.
- If you do not receive an acknowledgment letter within six months, you should assume your claim has been denied. You can proceed to file a court case (see step 8).

STEP 6. Cooperate with the investigation.

- You must respond to all requests for further information as the BOP investigates your claim. If you do not respond within a reasonable amount of time, your claims may be rejected or denied.

STEP 7. If you are satisfied with the settlement offer, accept it!

- If you accept the settlement offer, you give up your right to sue for any more money on this claim. The amount of money you accept is all the money you will get.

- Be realistic. When evaluating the offer, do not forget that you might not win if you go to court. Even if you do win, it will be a long time before your court case is done, and you may have to pay legal costs and attorney's fees to go to court.

BUT . . .

STEP 8. If you are dissatisfied with the settlement offer, file for reconsideration or go to court.

- If you have not received a response with a denial or a settlement offer within six months of the FILING DATE, consider your claim denied.
- If your claim is denied, or if you are dissatisfied with the amount of money offered to settle your claim, you may request in writing that the BOP reconsider your claim. You should write a letter back to the BOP Counsel's office and includes any further evidence you have that shows why you're right.
- If you have not received a response to your letter for reconsideration within six months of sending it, consider your request denied.
- After a final request for reconsideration is reviewed (accepted, denied, or not answered within six months), you may file a lawsuit asking for damages for personal injury or wrongful death in Federal District Court. You will be responsible for figuring out the proper U.S. District Court in which to file your lawsuit. You must file this lawsuit within 6 months of the DATE OF MAILING of the final denial of your claim (not when you get it).

The DATE OF MAILING: _____

- If you choose not to file for reconsideration, you must file any lawsuit within 6 months of the DATE OF MAILING of the original denial.

CLAIMS FOR PROPERTY LOSS OR DAMAGE

After Ali, you can no longer bring an FTCA claim about a claim for property loss or damage. You can ask the BOP to pay for what an employee lost or damaged by filling out an SF-95, or writing a letter with the information on the form if you cannot get one.

When you ask the BOP to pay for what was lost or damaged, the Small Claims Act allows them to pay you. The Small Claims Act applies to claims for property less than $1,000 and must be filed within ONE YEAR of the property loss or damage.

The date the harm happened: _____

This is an administrative remedy only. The BOP (or other agency) is allowed to settle your claim, but if they don't offer you enough, you can't take your claim to court. This means that the settlement offer you get from the BOP is the only chance you have to get money for your lost or damaged property.

To ask for money from the BOP for property loss or damage, follow these steps.

STEP 1. Get a Claim Form.

- You should ask for a "Claim for Damage, Injury, or Death and Supplemental Instructions (SF-95)".
- Current federal inmates may be able obtain claim forms from a member of their Unit Team or someone else at the prison. If you are no longer in a Federal institution, or you cannot obtain a form, you may write a letter with all the information that would go on the form (see Step 2). You must be certain that all the information is in the letter.

STEP 2. Fill out the form (or write the letter, if you cannot obtain a form). You must include, in the proper spaces on the form if you have one:

- Your name and address
- Whether the responsible party was employed as a military employee or a civilian employee (in most cases, BOP employees are civilian)
- Your date of birth
- Your marital status
- The day and date of the incident
- The basis of the claim. Tell what happened and people and property involved. Include:

- What was damaged or lost
- What was it worth
- Any property lists or receipts showing that you owned it

- List the owner of the property if it's not you
- Describe the property, what happened and where it is for them to view (if you have it)
- List all witnesses and their addresses
- The amount of money you want for your claim. Be honest. Look at what expenses you actually had to pay to fix or replace the property. Remember that after things get used, they aren't worth as much as you paid for them. Be sensible. Include any receipts or other information that help support your claim. You cannot get punitive damages
- If you happen to have insurance on the item, say that too.

STEP 3. Send in the form. Send it in to the BOP regional office for the place where the incident occurred. The addresses you need are listed on Page 9 of this handout.

- You are responsible for notifying the BOP Counsel's Office if your address changes, if you are transferred, or if you are released. The address is also on page 9.

STEP 4. Wait for a settlement offer. If you are offered money, you should accept it. This is your only opportunity to recover money. You cannot take your case to court.

For additional information, please look at the following:

Governing Federal Statutes

- Title 28 U.S.C. § 2671 – § 2680 – Tort Claims Procedure
- Title 28 U.S.C. § 2401 – Statutes of Limitation
- Title 31 U.S.C. § 3723 – Small Claims Act

General Federal Regulations for the FTCA

- Title 28 C.F.R. § 14.1 – § 14.11

Federal Regulations for the BOP

- Title 28 C.F.R. § 543.30 – § 543.32

BOP Addresses

Office of the General Counsel

BOP Central Office
320 First Street NW
Washington DC, 20534

Mid-Atlantic Regional Office

302 Sentinel Drive Suite 200
Annapolis Junction MD, 20701

North Central Regional Office

400 State Avenue, Suite 800
Kansas City KS, 66101

Northeast Regional Office

2nd & Chesnut St., 7th Flr
Philadelphia PA, 19106

South Central Regional Office

4211 Cedar Springs Rd
Dallas TX, 75219

Southeast Regional Office

3800 Camp Creek Park SW, Building 2000
Atlanta GA, 30331

Western Regional Office

7338 Shoreline Drive
Stockton CA, 95219

DISCLAIMER: This document is not intended to replace the advice of any attorney. This document does not represent legal advice by the D.C. Prisoners' Project of the Washington Lawyers' Committee, does not create an attorney-client relationship, and should not be relied upon as your sole resource in dealing with the Federal Tort Claims Act and Small Claims Act.

NOTES
