

Washington Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Stands Ready to Help Those Impacted by Hate and Discrimination in the DMV Region

Across this nation, acts of hate and discrimination have become more prevalent. The Washington Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights and Urban Affairs has, since its inception, fought for equality of opportunity, against discrimination and in support of diversity and integration. We continue to stand ready to provide legal assistance to those who have experienced hate, harassment, or unfair treatment in the region. Examples of such treatment include

- Being turned away from a job or facing harassment at work because of your religion, nationality, or race;
- Being unable to secure housing because of your religion, nationality, or race;
- Being stopped, harassed, or targeted by law enforcement, or asked about your immigration status or reason for being in this country;
- Not given access to government services in your language or denied access to government services because of your religion, nationality, or race; or
- Bullying or harassment at school because of your religion, nationality, or race.

If you or someone you know has experienced any act of hate, the Washington Lawyers' Committee is ready to help. Please contact us at 202-319-1000. The Washington Lawyers' Committee accepts clients regardless of income level, language spoken, or residency.

ABOUT THE WASHINGTON LAWYERS' COMMITTEE: For more than 45 years, the Washington Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights and Urban Affairs has handled thousands of cases representing individuals and groups seeking to vindicate their civil rights in the areas of employment, housing, public accommodations and other aspects of urban life. It represents people with claims of discrimination based on race, gender, national origin, disability, age, religion, sexual orientation, and military service and status. For more information, visit www.washlaw.org; or phone (202) 319-1000.